Favorite scenes: When she adjusts the office chair with Quinn watching. When she finds Duck tied to the dumpster.	Quinn Connor He's comes back to his hometown after being hurt in a traffic accident and being dumped by his fiancée. I love Quinn because he's not perfect, but he's trying to be a better man. Favorite scene: When he gives Hailey flowers and the scrunched bag of Snappy Stop hamburgers to win her back.	Dr. Chen He plays a key role in every Connor marriage proposal in Books 1 – 4. I especially love his line in Book 4 during that proposal scene.

She feels guilty for even considering another man. Her dilemma is emotional and heart-touching. Favorite scene: When she goes to the movie with Professor Bolton and realizes her mistake.	Max Connor Max is a wonderful leading man because he never gives up on winning Maddie over. She runs hot and cold giving Max doubts and frustrations as to whether she'll ever get over her late husband. He's understanding and gives her space. Favorite scene: When he falls off the roof.	Jamal This kid won my heart the minute I wrote the scene where he first meets Max. His positive attitude despite his handicap is something we all could learn from. He plays a big role in Book 4.
 Buy on Amazon	Daisy Mae Montgomery Daisy is not what she appears to be on the outside. The airhead act is a coping mechanism to how men react to her looks. Jacob and her butt heads at first partly because she plays up the airhead act. Favorite scene: When she measures the great room, pointing out it is off by 3 millimeters. Jacob's reaction to that is priceless.	Jacob Connor Jacob has been standoffish in Books 1 & 2. He doesn't make time for family events like his brothers do, so we get the impression that he isn't family oriented. He judges Daisy for how she looks and acts, but eventually realizes his mistake. He's sweet on the inside but hides it well. Favorite scene: When he takes Daisy to the hospital.	Gramps (John Vandervoldt) John first appeared in Book 1, but he plays a big role in this book. I love that he believes in Daisy and how he imparts his wisdom to her when she needs it most.
 Buy on Amazon	Ashleigh Connor Ashleigh has appeared in every book. Book 4 was time to have little sister be the leading lady. Family, her small town, and her PT practice are important things in her life. I love that she doesn't fall at Brock's feet and leave all the things she loves behind. Favorite scenes: Ash's healthy salads.	Brock Steele Brock has a big ego. He's a big shot football player and used to having everyone fall at his feet. Ashleigh doesn't fawn over him and she helps him see his over-the-top life through her eyes. I love his personal growth in coming to realize that his love for Ash comes first, even before his high-profile career. Favorite scene: His first introduction to Jamal at Max's house.	Tyrone Williams Ty is Brock's teammate on the LA Rams. He's keeping a secret about his personal life which he eventually reveals to Brock. The way that Ty honestly talks about his failure as a father is very heartwarming. He wants to make things right and I admire him for that.
